ALONG THE WATER FRONT.

How Some Sailors Feel on the "Crimp" Business.

TURNED AWAY FROM SAILORS HOME.
FED AND HOUSED BY THE MUCH ABUSED SHIP-PING MASTERS.

The Newsboy Arrives—Mille Morris Floated—Iwalani Layed Up. Tom Manson, Captain—Notes.

A group of sailors discussing the state of affairs was congregated on the corner of Queen and Nuuanu streets yesterday. They were talking of the so-called sailors' home, which is run by Captain Bray under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of this city. Three of the men were telling of their being refused admission because they had no money, and a fourth, although he had a little money, was refused because, as he says, he had not enough to pay more than a week's board and lodging. It seems that the three men, who are penniless, had made application to the Joyful News Mission to Mr. J. Leslie McComb, the evangelist, who is working for the welfare of sailors, and had been refused all but spiritual aid. Hearing of the boarding house kept by the much-abused Lewis & Turk, they went there and were given accommodation. Joseph Hancock, a sailor, made the following remarks about the treatment of sailors in this town: On Sunday morning he was sitting on a doorstep on Nuuanu street. A lady approached and asked him to go to a revival meeting that was being held for sailors up the street some place. The man remarked that he was hardly in a condition to go to religious services, as for two days he had had nothing to eat and religion would not set well on an empty stomach. The lady asked him if he was really hungry, and when he repeated that he had not eaten for two days, the lady said she was sorry and walked away. The three men, who were refused admission to the Sailors' Home because they had no money, and are now at the house kept by Lewis & Turk are Joseph Hancock, Frank McKenna and Joseph Pierce. Michael Blake was the man sent away because he did not have money enough. Said Frank McKenna: "There is no town in the world where people pretend to be doing so much for the sailor and really do so little. Here you have a sailors' home that is filled with landmen, a seamen's club that is shut during the day and opened at night for religious services, and a joyful news mission, where it doesn't cost anything to hear a sermon. For a destitute sailor or the only thing that is free among the many institutions run for the betterment of sailors is salvation. Salvation is all right for an empty soul, but it doesn't fill an empty stomach. "If a man begs, he is a vagrant and is arrested. He is told that only salvation is dispensed at missions and the like. This man McComb is holding forth against the crimps; he berates them well and gets himself in the papers as a friend of the poor seafarer, while, at the same time, these two land sharks, crimps, robbers and blood-suckers, are the only men in this town who would give me and my companions food and shelter. "When a man is destitute and has no place to go he is in a pretty bad fix. Being taken into a private place, kept by men who make a business of shipping sailors, is what we can find all over the Coast. Lewis & Turk, knowing we had not a cent, took us in and are going to get us a ship. They did not ask us for a cent and will not get any money from us, as it is against the law for a ship to advance money to sailors. If the captain of a ship wanting men chooses to pay Lewis & Turk for finding men for him, it is nothing out of our pocket. That is the captain's loss. Lewis & Turk are running their boarding house in connection with their business. They are housing and feeding ten penniless sailors now at their own expense, hoping to make it up from captains wanting men." Said Oscar Lewis yesterday: "Turk and I would like to have a committee of reputable men in this town appointed to examine into our characters and the character and past life of McComb, who is so hot after us at present. We are willing to abide by their decision; and, if we have ever done anything worse than he has, we will quit the business and leave the shipping of sailors to the water-front police and Sailors' Home kept by Captain Bray."

IWALANI'S REPORT.
Perser Clapham of the Iwalani reports as follows: "Very rough weather at Honokaa on Monday. We had a boat smashed and lost thirty-two bags of sugar overboard. Forced to quit work; we went to the gulch and remained until Tuesday. The weather had moderated on that day and we went back to finish loading. The Honokaa mill is not grinding to its full capacity. There are 2300 bags of sugar on hand. Cleaned out P. S. M. on Friday; there were 5000 bags on hand. The Iwalani is to be thoroughly overhauled before resuming her trips. A new engine and boiler will be installed, which will greatly increase her speed. The repairs will take about two months."

ALONG THE WHARVES.
The Italian ship Elisa sails for Portland, Or., this morning in ballast. She will load wheat at Portland for the United Kingdom. The bark Olympie will sail to-day for the Sound. She takes a cargo of empty casks and bottles. The little schooner Blanche and Ella, which started for Kaalawai last evening, put back into the harbor about dusk. It was very rough outside and the captain preferred waiting for daylight to make the trip around Diamond Head.

With a good wind the schooner Golden Gate raced up the harbor from Molokai last evening, making the Wilder wharf like a steamer. Captain Puhin handles the little vessel very cleverly. She left Kaunakakai at 10 o'clock yesterday with a cargo of coal. Captain Tom Mason, long known as a capable man in the handling of island schooners, has succeeded Captain Kewelo in command of the Alice Kimball.

The steamers Waialeale and Helene are expected to-day.

The President.

(From the Scranton (Pa.) Truth.)
Our excellent contemporary, the Washington Star, calls attention to an agreeable and interesting feature of the closing scenes of Congress, namely, the cordiality with which members of all parties express their regard for the President. It is certainly pleasant to contemplate the friendly personal relations existing between President McKinley and the people's representatives. His exalted office entitles the President of the United States to the respect of all his fellow citizens, but in addition to this, it is gratifying to note the tact and courtesy with which President McKinley has commended himself to the esteem and friendly consideration even of those statesmen who are strenuously opposed to him in politics.
